Contents

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction  1

William F. Tate IV, Washington University in St. Louis

Part I: Conceptualizing Urban Space

1 Neighborhood Inequality, Violence, and the Social Infrastructure of the American City 11

Robert J. Sampson, Harvard University

2 Toward a Theory of Place: Social Mobility, Proximity, and Proximal Capital 29

Odis D. Johnson Jr., University of Maryland–College Park

3 Urban Opportunity Structure and Racial/Ethnic Polarization 47

George C. Galster, Wayne State University

4 Racial Segregation in Multiethnic Schools: Adding Immigrants to the Analysis 67

Ingrid Gould Ellen and Katherine O’Regan, With Amy Ellen Schwartz and Leanna Stiefel, New York University

Part II: The Growing Complexity of Metropolitan America

5 Suburbanization and School Segregation 85

Sean F. Reardon, Stanford University
John T. Yun, University of California, Santa Barbara
Anna K. Chmielewski, Stanford University

6 Schools Matter: Segregation, Unequal Educational Opportunities, and the Achievement Gap in the Boston Region 103

John R. Logan, Brown University
Dierdre Oakley, Georgia State University
Contents

7 Still Separate, Still Unequal, but Not Always So “Suburban”: The Changing Nature of Suburban School Districts in the New York Metropolitan Area
Amy Stuart Wells, Teachers College, Columbia University
Douglas Ready
Jacquelyn Duran
Courtney Grzesikowski
Kathryn Hill
Allison Roda
Miya Warner
Terrenda White

8 Adding Geospatial Perspective to Research on Schools, Communities, and Neighborhoods
Mark C. Hogrebe, Washington University in St. Louis

Part III: Teaching and Learning Research in Social Context

9 Conceptual and Methodological Challenges to a Cultural and Ecological Framework for Studying Human Learning and Development
Carol D. Lee, Northwestern University

10 An Ecological and Activity Theoretic Approach to Studying Diasporic and Nondominant Communities
Kris D. Gutiérrez, University of Colorado at Boulder
Angela E. Arzubiaga, Arizona State University

11 Reconstructing Education in America
Henry M. Levin, Teachers College, Columbia University

12 Can School Improvement Reduce Racial Inequality?
Stephen W. Raudenbush, University of Chicago

13 Seeing Our Way Into Learning Science in Informal Environments
Shirley Brice Heath, Stanford University, Brown University

14 No Color Necessary: High School Students’ Discourse on College Support Systems and College Readiness
Evellyn Elizondo, University of California, Los Angeles
Walter R. Allen, University of California, Los Angeles
Miguel Ceja, California State University, Sacramento

15 Taking Math and Science to Black Parents: Promises and Challenges of a Community-Based Intervention for Educational Change
Roslyn Arlin Mickelson, University of North Carolina–Charlotte
Linwood Cousins, Western Michigan University
Anne Velasco, University of North Carolina–Charlotte
Brian Williams, Georgia State University
Part IV: Research on Human Development, Health, and Human Service Providers in Social Context

16 Maximizing Culturally and Contextually Sensitive Assessment Strategies in Developmental and Educational Research
Margaret Beale Spencer, University of Chicago
Brian Tinsley, University of Pennsylvania
Davido Dupree, University of Pennsylvania
Suzanne Fegley, University of Pennsylvania

17 Immigrant Children: Hiding in Plain Sight in the Margins of the Urban Infrastructure
Michael A. Olivas, University of Houston

18 Delivering High-Quality Public Services to Vulnerable Families and Children in America’s Cities: The Lessons From Reforming Child Welfare
Olivia Golden, The Urban Institute

19 Health Disparities Among African Americans in Urban Populations
Sheri R. Notaro, Cornell University

20 A “Tragic Dichotomy”: A Case Study of Industrial Lead Contamination and Management in a Company Town
Jill McNew-Birren, Marquette University

21 Pandemic Preparedness: Using Geospatial Modeling to Inform Policy in Systems of Education and Health in Metropolitan America
William F. Tate IV, Washington University in St. Louis

Part V: Case Studies of Metropolitan Communities

Gail E. Wolfe, Washington University in St. Louis

23 “God’s Will or Government Policy?” Katrina’s Unveiling of History and the Mass Dispersion of Black People
Jerome E. Morris, University of Georgia

Epilogue

24 Research Infrastructure for Improving Urban Education
Larry V. Hedges and Nathan Jones, Northwestern University

Ronald Walters, University of Maryland–College Park

Epilogue: Toward Civic Responsibility and Civic Engagement
William F. Tate IV, Washington University in St. Louis

Index

About the Contributors