Election Regulations

The following regulations have been adopted by AERA to ensure an equal and fair opportunity for all candidates. They are consistent with the norms of a professional scientific society, and it is expected that individuals will abide by both the spirit and the letter of the regulations to limit campaigning. The regulations are as follows:

- The biographical sketch accompanying each ballot is the primary mechanism through which a candidate may provide the membership with information regarding his/her qualifications. Biographical sketches of candidates for AERA President-Elect are limited to 250 words. Statements from candidates for positions of Division Secretary are limited to 100 words.
- Candidates and their supporters may communicate with friends through personal letters, conversations, and telephone calls. However, all such calls or letters should be individually initiated and involve little expense. Mass mailings (including electronic distribution) by a candidate, or by supporters on behalf of a candidate, are prohibited. Candidates have a responsibility to discourage such activities on the part of their supporters.
- Association resources (including newsletters) may not be used to promote, announce, or support individual candidates. In particular, AERA committees, SIGs, and divisions are prohibited from using association funds for such campaign activities or communications.
- Any violation of these regulations should be reported immediately to the Executive Director. If the allegations are substantiated, disciplinary action may result, such as disqualification from the election or censorship of the member found to be in violation of these regulations.
